

ABSTRACT

A video conference system has a computer and a camera. The camera is disposed in the computer in a first position and is mechanically detached from and electrically coupled to the computer in a second position.